In the dark mist of early morning, when the town was quiet, the rumor of the arrival of the boat load of Pinkertons reached Homestead. The word was sent along the line, and the streets in almost instant were crowded with men, women children hurrying in the direction of the work's landing. Some only were clad. From the Steel Works. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 6 .- At an early hour this morning 300 Pinkerton detectives arrived in Pittsburg from the east. They were quietly marched to the Monongahela river, where they were loaded on barges and shipped steel bars in the river bank, and over 1,000 men Foster of the Treasury Department after a con- to Homestead at 2:15. > TWO WORKMEN SHOT The Pinkertons opened fire and at the first volley two workmen fell. This enraged the crowd and they bore down on Pinkertons with resistless force. Nobody stopped to in-quire whether the new comers were deputy sheriffs, Pinkerton detectives or non-union laborers. After the exchange of shots the crowd grouped on the bank, fell back and climbed over the heap of rubbish, rushed toward the big treetles leading to the Pemicky railroad bridge. Probably 900 of the men stood their ground and returned a desultory fire with their revolvers at the invaders. These shots did little or no apparent damage and the band, finding their weapons ineffective, slowly fell back before the withering fire of the Win-

This bloody spectacle roused the drooping spirits of the crowd, and with a hourse cheer half a dozen men rushed to the place where Merry and the Hungarian lay. They picked up the bodies and carried them behind the treatle. One of the rescuers, a Welshman, who refused to give his name, was shot in the left leg just as he raised Merry's head from the ground. Merry and the Hungarian were carried over the treatle work to the Peemickee tracks and then taken to the office of Dr. Purman on Dixon street. The doctor, after a hasty examination, announced that both men would probably die.

The day was just dawning and clouds of thick gravish vapor hung over the waters. Suddenly from out the shadows were seen the lights of the steamer. On either side of her were the barges. Once through the fence the crowd penred along the steep embankment skirting the river fence of the Carnegie company and, despite the PINKERTONS AND THE MILL MEN FIGHT mud and the uneven character of the ground. they made rapid bendway. It was a strangely silent crowd. Few words were spoken and these sprang from the lips of the women who were apparently as anxious to participate in the conflict as their husbands, brothers and sons. From Homestead to the pump house it is a good two miles, but all things considered these buildressed men and women made the journey in record-breaking time. Once there they gathered in one solid mass, the women, or at least the most of them, on the outskirts. The front rank of this solid wall of humanity stood at the water's very edge, and every moment the crowd grew in numbers and determination. Slowly the tide brought her silent consort down the channel. STRIPPING FOR ACTION. Just below the Pemicky bridge she partly turned her prow toward the shore and then, amid the shricks of steam whistles and the angry groans and hisses from those gathered on the banks, the occupants of the boats stripped for action. Each one of them was armed with a Winchester rifle and each rifle was loaded to

Up to this time no one had attempted to leave the boat, but suddenly fifty or more of the invaders attempted to jump ashore. The strikers responded with a sharp volley, and so thick and fast came the bullets that the deputies retired to the semi-shelter of the lower deck.
